Date Presented to School Board: _________
Mrs. Swenson comes to work each day prepared not only to ensure the school is clean, but to get to know the students and help them in any way she can. In addition to her other duties, Sandy helps to supervise the lunch room and spends that time visiting with students and advising them on various issues. The following is part of a note that was sent to the superintendent about Mrs. Swenson.

My Grandson chose to do his Generations project on me. While working on it he told me that he showed it to “Swenson” the custodian and she gave him some tips. He said, “She is my favorite adult at school” I can’t think of a better compliment. I don’t know Mrs. Swenson but I do know she makes a difference in the life of my grandson and probably many other students.

We are happy to have Sandy as part of our staff and she sets a great example of how important all our employees are to our students.
Interim Assessments

The Smarter Balanced Assessment System has three major components: end-of-year summative assessments designed for accountability purposes, interim assessments designed to support teaching and learning throughout the year, and a suite of tools and resources in the Digital Library that support classroom-based formative assessment practices.

Interim assessments can serve a variety of educator needs. To better support the variety of possible uses consistent with member education agency policies, local districts may establish the timeframe, administration policies, and scoring practices for interim assessments. The interim assessments are considered non-secure and non-public. The non-secure designation provides educators the flexibility to access the questions and their students' responses to the questions. The non-public designation prohibits posting the interim assessments publicly, allowing educators to use the interim assessments as a standardized assessment if they choose to do so. Because the interims are non-secure, they are not intended to be used for accountability purposes. The interim assessments also include all of the accessibility resources that are available in the summative assessment to provide accurate results for all students.

Features of Interim Assessments

- Flexible administration options that better support local purposes
- High quality items that are placed on the same scale as the summative assessment and include the full array of accessibility resources that are available on the end-of-year summative assessment
- May be used to measure students' knowledge and skills in grade levels other than their enrolled grades
- A rigorous item bank that:
  - Covers the range of Depth of Knowledge described in the Common Core State Standards (CCSS)
  - Allows educators access to the test questions and their students' responses to the questions as part of educators' instructional process to address students' relative strengths and needs for improvement

Two Types of Interim Assessments

Interim Comprehensive Assessments (ICAs) are assessments that measure the same content as the summative assessment. Therefore, the ICAs may be helpful for purposes such as determining the knowledge and skills of students who are new to the district or the state, enrolled in non-tested grades (e.g. grades 9 and 10) and providing interim information after a significant period of instruction.

Interim Assessment Blocks (IABs) are assessments teachers can use throughout the school year to focus on more focused sets of related concepts in mathematics and English language arts (ELA). Since the IABs are more granular than the ICA, educators may be better able to administer the assessments during the school year in a manner more consistent with the sequence of their curricula.
